Lose Votes by Wedding Aliens.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., April 12.—Women in California who are disfranchised by reason of having wedded aliens will be restored to citizenship if a bill passed by the lower house of the state legislature becomes a law. Since women in this state were granted the right of suffrage there has been much complaint ought, therefore, to be of tremendous value to future wedge prophets in forecasting climatic changes.

In Constant Communication.
"If this can be done, the Fram will through her wireless apparatus be in constant communication with these stations. We shall all make our observations as to wind and weather at the same time, and in this way cover a much larger area for a longer period and in a much more exhaustive manner than would otherwise have been possible.
What I have said of the polar currents in the water holds good of the currents in the air. They give the key to the weather conditions the world over.

The Observations which we shall make
casting climatic changes.

AMUNDSEN ANXIOUS ABOUT ARCTIC SHIP

Fears the Fram Might Find

Impossible.

WANTS TO USE CANAL

Washington More Interested in Coming Expedition Since Local Men Subscribed.

In connection with the announcement made a few days ago by the National Geographic Society that the coming arctic expedition of Capt. Roald Amundsen, conducted with its scientific and financial co-operation, greater interest than ever in the expedition will be taken in Washington.

The fact that the Washington organization has subscribed $20,000 toward the expense of the expedition has been cited all over the world and one of the dispatches sent to Amundsen's home in Norway said that he expected to receive for his arctic ship the Fram the honor of being allowed to be one of the first vessels to pass through the Panama canal.

Reasons for Using Canal.
Amundsen is not particularly seeking an honor in his desire to have the Fram pass through the Panama canal late this summer or early this fall. The point of whether the ship shall do so, by all depends on how nearly the canal is finished at the time the Fram is ready to go through. The explorer is, however, conducting with its scientific and finan-
ington.

Unsettled and Probably Rain Today; Monday Cloudy.

For the District of Columbia, Maryland and Virginia, unsettled weather and probably rain today. Monday cloudy; moderate to brisk shifting winds.

Pressure continues low over the middle Atlantic and south Atlantic states, as a result of which rains were general Saturday throughout the Atlantic states and the Ohio and middle Mississippi valleys.
There were heavy rains in the Atlantic states from Florida northward to southeastern New England. Another distasteful developing over the western plateau, but thus far it has been attended by very light precipitation.

A general rise in temperature to considerably above the normal is in progress over the western plains states and the Rocky mountain and plateau regions, while unseasonably cool weather continues over the great central valley and the gulf states.

There will be rain Sunday in the Atlantic states and the upper Ohio valley, followed by cloudy weather, probably without appreciable precipitation Monday.
In other parts of the country the weather will be fair, except that rains are probable on the north Pacific coast and over the western plateau region.

BRITAIN APPROVES
ENVOY OF HUERTA

Announced by Mexico as Constructive Recognition of Present Government.

EMBASSY IN WASHINGTON GIVEN OFFICIAL NOTICE

England's Attitude Interpreted as Foreshadowing Favorable Action by Other Nations.

Recognition of Mexico appears to have been constructively accorded by Great Britain; such is the comment in local circles regarding Mexican developments.
Official advice from the foreign office in Mexico City to the Mexican embassy in Washington state that Bartolome Carbajal, a Mexican, designated as minister to St. James by the present Huerta government, has been found acceptable to the British government. Acceptance of a diplomat designated by the nation to which he is to be accredited is in itself an act of recognition of the nation designating the envoy, it is pointed out, according to international interpretation.
The message from the Mexican foreign office announcing that Senor Carbajal is acceptable to Great Britain is said to qualify the statement in no way.

Senor Carbajal is not known to have been working to delay the recognition of the London post. Nor is there any advice to indicate that Miguel Carbajal, who exchanges missions with Senor Carbajal, has left London for St.
Petersburg. Should this prove to be true, it would indicate the movements of Senor Carbajal. It is admitted, there may be some question whether his acceptance by England is a matter of British policy or a matter of British policy. The Mexican government has been so definitely expressed as the Mexican government.

Example to Others.
Recognition by so important a nation as Great Britain is admitted to be of great importance to Mexico. That Great Britain should have taken the initiative, in advance of the United States, it is further urged, might have been a disadvantage to this government in giving recognition to the Huerta provisional government, which stands in great need of such action by the United States.

The withholding of official recognition by the United States is regarded by many as working to delay the recognition of the Huerta provisional government, which stands in great need of such action
by the United States.

In view of the attitude of the Mexican provisional government, expressed in many ways, it is not surprising that President Huerta is anxious to maintain in London a mission that shall be of national character and in diplomatic relations with the United States. His patience, his friends here maintain, seem unjustified. That Senor Carbajal, the minister-designate to London, is in any way an enemy of the United States is believed by Americans resident in Mexico or by officials of the State Department in Washington.

Long in Diplomatic Service.
Senor Carbajal is a diplomat many years in service. He was never a national character, but he became a minister of foreign affairs in the provisional government of President de la Barra, after the resignation of President Diaz. Associated with Senor de la Barra for many years in diplomatic missions in South America and Central America, his selection as under secretary of foreign affairs, when de la Barra held the portfolio of foreign affairs, which enabled him to become acting minister upon the elevation of his chief, was more a matter of personal merit and an act of friendly recognition.
His present appointment to London shows that Senor Carbajal is a man of The Madero administration, which felt no friendship for Senor Carbajal, is said to have had a desire to exile him by sending him to the St. Petersburg post, one of small consequence in Mexican diplomacy.

As minister to Nicaragua at the time of the Zelaya troubles, Senor Carbajal, as the agent of the sentiment of President de la Barra, showed courtesy to the deposed executive that brought him under some criticism of unfriendliness toward American interests. The view was not American diplomats in Nicaragua and elsewhere in Central America, nor by officials of the State Department. His course was subject to no other construction than that of carrying out the instructions given him by his superiors.

Cultivated Friendly Relations.
As acting minister of foreign affairs, his friends here say, he contributed all in his power to the maintenance of friendly relations with the United States—acting more or less under the direct supervision of President de la Barra, whose avowed policy was the strengthening of all ties with the neighbor on the north—as far as his limited term in office could allow him to manifest that purpose. Whatever occasions there developed from the viewpoint of the Mexican amour proper
